HARDING CALLS LEADERS OF RAIL STRIKE TO WASHINGTON

reached Washington early in the day from Chicago.

Mr. Jewell and his colleagues went into conference with the President at 11 o'clock, shortly after Mr. Cuyler had concluded an hour and a half's discussion of the strike situation with Mr. Harding.

Mr. Cuyler, on leaving the White House said he had presented the view point of the railroad management and that he would remain in Washington "to await the pleasure of the President," but that there had been no new development in the situation. Mr. Cuyler indicated that he would return to the White House for another conference after the President had discussed the situation with the strike leaders.

STRIKE LEADERS SILENT

Proved for an opinion as to whether seniority was the sole stumbling block in the way of settlement, he said he had seen no statement from Mr. Jewell on the point and could not therefore say whether that was the position taken by the union.

The strike leaders held a brief conference at their hotel before going to the White House. The house of the international union was joined with William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, another of the labor organizations involved in the strike. Mr. Jewell participated in the conference only for a few minutes. All of the strike leaders maintained absolute silence regarding their visit to Washington prior to seeing the President, even refusing to say whether they came at the invitation of Mr. Harding or upon their own initiative.

ARRANGED BY DAVIS

The general belief, however, was that Secretary of Labor Davis during his conference with Mr. Jewell last week at Moonbush, Ill., had suggested the leaders come to Washington and that they had acted upon that suggestion after Mr. Davis had acquainted the President with it.

The union chiefs who conferred with the President in addition to Mr. Jewell and Mr. Johnston included Timothy Healey, president of the ironworkers organization, J. W. Kilgus, president of the blacksmiths, J. A. Franklin, president of the boilermakers, M. P. Ryan, president of the signers, James Murray, vice-president of the Sheet Metal Workers Union, and Edward Egan,

Governor to Direct Coal Distribution

Washington, July 27.—With the Federal machinery for emergency control of coal distribution completed by a central committee of departmental heads, the government today issued to the States the necessary cooperation to put the scheme into effective operation.

The President designated the following officials to make up the coal distributing committee and administer the provisions of the emergency order: Attorney-General Clegg, Secretary of the Interior, J. A. Franklin, president of the boiler-makers, M. P. Ryan, president of the signers, James Murray, vice-president of the Sheet Metal Workers Union, and Edward Egan,

CHARGE SERVICE DEMAND BY EDISON

That the Edison Electrical Illuminating Company demands a gross sum from Mrs. Katherine B. Hart of Brookline to at least $100 worth of current a year before it will consent to give wires into her house was charged today before the State Department of Public Utilities.

Attorney M. Manley Evans admitted the Edison had made that high demand, but said the Edison estimated the cost of running underground conduits would be about $2,000. Dr. Lawrence J. Lewis of No. 10, 10 West avenue, Roxbury, and Frank Volin, who has built several dwellings in Wood avenue, Somerville, urged that the Edison be forced to supply them with service.

GOVERNOR BAXTER AT DEVENS REVIEW

Cambridge, July 27.—Governor Percival P. Baxter of Maine reviewed the 103rd Infantry and 122nd Artillery, Maine National Guard, at Devens today.

The Governor was accompanied by his entire staff on the trip. He also inspected the work of the various units and offered a prize for the team giving the best exhibition of "sauts" Friday.

VICTIM IN CAFE CANADIAN SHIP CRASHES INTO ICEBERG

MURDER NEW HAVEN MAN

Cleveland, O., July 27 (By International News Service)—With arrival of George O'Connell, or Connolly, a lawyer from New Haven, Ct., today, police expected to clear up details in Cleveland's restaurant murder when Thomas A. O'Connell of New Haven, operator of carnival concessions, was killed.

Mrs. Mabel C. Champion, alias Mrs. Mabel Barrett, said to be widow of a police in a duzen cities, is held on a charge of murder. Her husband, A. F. Champion, is held as a witness.

The woman, young and pretty, still denies she killed O'Connell. Her husband says he knows nothing of the crime.

Captain of Detectives George Masterson sought to establish these things:

1. The real name of the man slain. It has been given as O'Connell, Connolly and Connolly.

2. Whether the murder was the result of an accident, quarrel or previous acquaintance had existed.

3. The antecedents of Mr. and Mrs. Champion, on all details of other bands, Champion has admitted many facts, among them being that he is in Dallas, Tex., and that lately he had been making his living playing cards.

Today he admitted that the gun with which O'Connell was killed was his. The police claim Mrs. Champion tried the fatal shot.

Wreckage of Titanic

Wailfax, N. B., July 27.—The Canadian freight steamer Canadian Pioneer narrowly escaped the fate of the Titanic when she crashed head-on into a huge iceberg off the east end of the Strait of Belle Isle.

A hole was torn in her starboard bow about ten feet below the waterline.

The steamer crept into North Sydney with her hullmen holding aloft the pumps keeping the water down as much as possible in her forepeak.

The collision occurred in a dense fog shortly before 1 o'clock Wednesday morning. The ship was proceeding slowly through the fog when the lookout sighted the iceberg and shouted. He shouted a warning and the ship's helm was put hard over. The boat was almost on top of the iceberg, however, before it was seen and the crash could not be averted.

The freighter missed the largest section of the big berg and crashed into a big spur hidden beneath the water.

Believe End of Anthracite Strike is Near

Pottsville, Pa., July 27 (By International News Service)—Important developments leading to the possible settlement of the anthracite coal strike are occurring in the conference of the Mayors of the anthracite region cities.

Mayor Beardsley, of this city, and today, that representatives of mine owners have agreed to the demands for a 20 per cent. increase, which means a concession of $4,000,000 a year. They also have agreed not to press the demands for a change in working hours, which makes a further concession from their previous demands of $7,000,000 a year.

Rescinds Call for Meeting of Illinois Miners

St. Louis, July 27 (By the Associated Press)—President Frank Patterson of the Illinois miners today rescinded his call for a State miners' convention at Peoria August 2. He said this action was taken because of what he termed "premature newspaper announcements of the convention."

Rescinding of the convention call by President Patterson followed a resolution today by John Wallace, secretary-treasurer of the Springfield, Ill., branch, that such an order threatened disruption of the United Mine Workers of America. Wall said Patterson's motive in calling a State convention was to submit a separate wage contract for Illinois and was "rank sedition."

Cars From U. S. May Force Candidates to Strike

Montreal, July 27.—Canadian shop men employed by the Grand Trunk railroad are being practically forced to declare an immediate strike because that system is "deteriorated" to keep repairing engine and cars sent to its shop by lines in the United States whose repairmen are on strike, said an announcement today by R. J. Talbot, president of Division No. 4, Railway Employees Department of the American Federation of Labor.

Pullman Housing Shop Employees Dynamited

Production Begins in Strike-Closed Mines

Cantonburg, Pa., July 27.—Cader leaves guard the first actual production of soft coal in the strike-closed mines of Southwest Pennsylvania began at Montrose today. Operations No. 8, Mine A, under protection of two troops of National Guard Cavalry augmented by mine guards and State police, today began mining. The mine, during the night from the wooded hills in the vicinity of the mine, actual work was begun without any demonstration of any kind from the striking miners.

PLAN TO CUT LIST OF ARMY OFFICERS

Washington, July 27.—Major General Joseph T. Dickman, retired, will head a committee for the board of general officers convened to supervise the reduction in the number of army officers. About 1100 officers will have to be dropped from the list in conformity to the order of Congress reducing the size of the army.

FIND MISSING FISHERMAN'S BODY

Gloucester, July 27.—The belief that the sword fisherman Melicia Enos, was lost as a following a collision was partially confirmed when a body answering the description of a member of the crew, John Lennin, was picked up by Captain Patrick Murphy of the schooner Wesley W. Smith, floating in the harbor. The body was found set out five weeks ago, and no word has been heard from her since.

FOREST HILLS GIRL SURPRISES MOTHER

The parents of Miss Elizabeth D. Noun of Forest Hills, were given surprise when newspapermen called them on the telephone and informed them that their daughter had moved to Brooklyn with John R. Connor of Jamaica Plain and had filed marriage intentions there. Mrs. Noun said that her daughter had gone on an automobile ride with Mr. Connor and that she had called up to say that she was delayed and would not return until next day.

LONG SOUGHT JOB COMES TOO LATE

Salem, Mass., July 27.—Word that the man who had obtained from a fruitless search, came too late to Alfred Bancher of Biddeford, Me., today. When Bancher's landlady went to his room early this morning to deliver a newspaper, she found a friend who had obtained him a job. She found him dead on the bed. The gas was turned on and the window had been sealed.

Legal advice to determine if members of the Public Works Board are guilty of misconduct.

Official orders have been issued by council for three years. Mr. Rocco declared, to have the swamp known as "death pits" filled in, but that filling material has been dumped on private land owned by powerful mercantile and commercial interests, and not in the pits.

"The pits are a menace to life," said the councilman. "People step on the grass covering and slip to their death in mire."

WILL NOT RAISE PRICE OF MILK IN AUGUST

Decision not to increase the price of milk for the month of August was made today at the meeting of the New England Milk Producers' Association. Estimates showed that the cost of production for the coming month would be only very slightly higher than the cost for July, not enough higher to warrant an increase in price.

Reports yesterday indicated that the price of milk would be increased one cent per quart, the reason for the proposed increase being the excessive rainfall early in the summer. The reason for the increase from June's price to July had been the drying up of pastures in mid-July.

Public Accountant Edward L. Price has examined some of the books of the Producers' Association at the request of District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, who has been investigating the milk situation to determine if a fair price is being charged.

Seized as "Queen"

BEATRICE BRUNO.

"RUM QUEEN" CAUGHT IN GUN FIGHT

Manchester, N. H., July 27.—A young woman, alleged to be the "Queen" of a gang of rum runners together with four male companions, are being held at the county jail on various charges arising out of a running battle over Bedford road between members of the gang and local officers in which shots were fired.

Beatrice Bruno, thirty-five years old, of No. 556 Chestnut street, is the woman, who, police say, has been responsible for engineering the sale of thousands of dollars' worth of liquor.

FOUR MEN ALSO HELD.

Zenta Crooks of No. 143 Grove street and Hector Hunt of No. 77 Leland avenue are locked on charges of transporting liquor; Arthur Bellare of No. 219 Harvard street is charged with operating an automobile without a license and his brother, William Bellare, is being held on suspicion.

WILD AUTO CHASE.

Three automobiles valued at $2,500, and 50 gallons of high proof liquor are also in the hands of the police.

The capture of the five followed a race through streets and country roads, during which the pursuing officers fired several shots at the alleged rum runners as their cars were traveling more than 65 miles per hour.

Edward Bostgarpe, who said his home is in Boston, complained to County Solicitor George T. Hamilton and Sheriff John T. O'Dowd that he had been robbed of a large quantity of alcohol. The Sheriff said the liquor was brought to a farm by men from Massachusetts in two automobiles.

At the farm, it is alleged, they were met by the "Rum Queen," who asked them to leave the liquor in the bushes and come into the farm house for their money. She is alleged to have urged them to conceal the liquor while her companions loaded the liquor into other automobiles.

GREENE PROMISED 2,448 P. C. TO MANY WHO INVESTED WITH HIM

RECALLS "PROMISE BOOKS"

Dazzling Profits to Be Shared if Prospectus Was Believed

Henry Vincent Greene, who once jerked a sale for $12 a week, was now a promoter when he lured into State street his first "promise book" from Henry's "promise book" from which his salesmen read to the fascinated horde anxious to get out of the land of want via Henry's company.

The salesmen read to the horde, much as a kindly-faced lady reads from the scriptures at a certain prayer meeting. No religious themes were ever repeated brighter than the financial ledger that was to accord to the trusting investors who followed "The Prospectus" words. In their old age they were to live in the land of milk and honey, Henry Vincent Greene leading them personally to the New Canaan, the land of plenty.

Read a page from Henry's little book and learn how 60,000-odd folks were to invest their hard-earned savings in the various Henry Vincent Greene stockholding companies. (Referring to the Commercial Finance Corporation, Henry's first company.)

COMMERCIAL FINANCE CORPORATION

ESTIMATED FUTURE VALUE OF STOCK

Financial stocks which have prospective future increase in value usually transfer at a valuation based upon returns at the rate of about 4 1/2% upon the transfer price.

|                                  | Per Cent      |
|----------------------------------|---------------|
| Preferred Stock—Regular Dividend | 40.83         |
| Extra Earnings                   | 7             |
| Total                     | 47.83  |
| Common Stock—Regular Dividend    | 163.75        |
| Extra Earnings                   | 190.75        |
| Total                     | 354.50 |

47.83 per cent divided by 4 1/2 per cent equals 10.63 times.
190.75 per cent divided by 4 1/2 per cent equals 42.39 times.

One share Preferred would be worth 10.63 times par, or $51.50
One share Common would be worth 42.39 times par, or $211.95

Two shares Preferred Stock would be worth $103.00
Two shares Common Stock would be worth $423.80

Three shares, costing $150, would be worth $309.00

Four shares, costing $200, would be worth $423.80

Five shares, costing $250, would be worth $538.25

half time its paid in capital and surplus.

It is evident that within a few years the stock of the Commercial Finance Corporation will increase in value very much.

Average gross annual percentage of profit is estimated at 40 per cent.

Cost and expense of conducting the business is estimated at 5 per cent.

It is planned that the preferred stock will participate 35 per cent, and the common stock will participate 75 per cent. In the net surplus above 7 per cent, on all stock.

ATTRACTIVE FIGURES.

It is estimated that the above will be accomplished within three years after the subscription of the $2,000,000 preferred stock is paid in, when the results should be as follows:

Amount of preferred stock $2,000,000
Amount of common stock 3,000,000
Total paid in stock $5,000,000
Plus 30 per cent. reserved in surplus 1,500,000
Working capital 2,500,000
Multiplied by 3% 75,000
Equals volume of business possible $15,000,000
Multiplied by per cent. of gross profit 45%
Equals gross earnings $6,750,000
Deduct operating cost 750,000
8 per cent on $15,000,000 2,250,000
Annual net earnings $3,750,000
Percentage of net earned distributed 7 per cent. regular dividend $262,500
7 per cent. regular dividend $262,500
40.83 per cent. extra on preferred $140,000
Total $3,247,500
18.75 per cent. on common $2,985,000
Are you dizzy?

Not had figure-juggling for one who was confined to the juggling of vanilla and "malted milk." And that's only a page, page 2 to be exact, in a whole book of promises on the Commercial Finance Corporation—subtitled "Honest Business Methods by Competent Men."

On Page 3, which is reproduced in today's Boston American, Henry shows how three shares of stock costing $150 would grow to be worth $1,125.50, an increase in value of a mere 3.48 per cent.

Just read Page 5, and before you succumb to admiration at lengths the carefully sprayed millions note the concluding paragraph. After setting $15 worth of stock inflated to $1,125.50, Henry writes:

"Above everything else it is the fundamental policy of the H. V. Greene & Co. to understate, and while, after months of independent and exhaustive research—and also taking into consideration the experience of similar concerns—we believe the above estimated earnings are conservative, and will materialize we reduce by one-half the above estimate—then—

"Three shares, costing $150, would be worth $1,125.50."

"Increase in value 124 per cent."

"This modest little book, a simple and plain statement of the facts, is a most valuable asset to a prospectus, was brought to the attention of Mr. K. E. Manookian, an insurance agent, who once sold stock for Henry."

RELIED IT HIMSELF.

"Did only sold it," said Mr. Manookian, but got so busy reading the stuff to customers I believed it myself and invested every nickel I made in the Greene companies."

Through Mr. Manookian, several friends dropped more than $10,000 to the Greene companies. The stock that Henry pictured three years ago as about to grow in value to the thousands is worth today $13 per share.

"I don't see about myself," said Mr. Manookian, "I've lost more than that gambling on legitimate stocks, but I'm anxious to help get justice for the good people who invested their all on my say-so."

Henry's "promise book," one of which all Greene salesmen carried three years back, is the last of 500 in existence, the other 499 having been destroyed by Henry when investigations were looking for such good "Greene reading matter" two years back.

Tomorrow the Boston American will reveal how Henry offered Mr. Manookian $1,000 to give this book up that it also might be destroyed.

MAN QUESTIONED IN SKELETON MYSTERY

North Attleboro, July 27.—A bundle of letters found in a chest which contained the skeleton of a two-month-old baby residing in the apartment of a man who was closely questioned, revealing his knowledge of the case. The chest was found in a lodging house at the corner of Mason avenue and Washington street by Louis Morse, a laborer, Sheriff Toner refused to reveal the identity of the man under surveillance, but admitted that an arrest is expected.

PIONEER HAVERRILL: MERCHANT IS DEAD

Haverhill, July 27.—William H. Floyd, seventy-one years old, of 128 Webster street, a pioneer clothing merchant, died here after a sixteen months' illness. He was a member of the clothing firm of Floyd-Taylor, one of the biggest in the city, retiring two years ago, and was a brother of Hon. Charles M. Floyd, former Governor of New Hampshire.

Women Join in Fight

Dublin, July 27.—Women in Dublin, armed with pitchforks, surrounded a band of irregular soldiers, holding them until the arrival of regulars.

wanted the fun of killing him by electricity, as the little boy will kill the blue-bellied thing that we are always ready to help them when they get beyond help. Plenty of societies for helping criminals; no society for helping mothers of young twinks.

William Allen White put up a sign. The Governor told him it was against the law. White said that he was exercising the right of free speech guaranteed under the Constitution. Nevertheless, he took the sign down, saying he thought it was his duty to "obey the law."

An editorial cut tells workers to follow William Allen White's example, and cease to rebel against findings of the Federal Labor Board.

It sounds all right, but William Allen White, when he gives in, simply takes down a poster. Workmen, when they give in, take lower salaries, work longer hours and less comfort for their wives and children.

If the country and happiness of William Allen White's family had depended on holding that poster up, it would be up now. It is easy to give advice.

You have noticed that the village in a play usually has a jet black mountain. Logans had it in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Even come villages wear it. Professor

DENIES HALTING AID TO DISABLED VETS

Washington, July 27.—Reports, to charge that, as chief co-ordinator of the Federal Board of Hospitalization, he had delayed and obstructed the government's program for care of disabled war veterans.

Brigadier-General Sawyer, President Harding's personal physician, today declared "facts certainly show the United States government is doing every consistent thing possible for the disabled." Everything which human agency could accomplish.

GARY WILL DIRECT SAFETY CAMPAIGN

New York, July 27.—Aroused by the city's high mortality rate from accidents, Robert H. Gary, head of the U. S. Steel Corporation, has accepted the chairmanship of a committee of the Safety Institute of America.

He has invited thirty-seven leaders in industry, city and educational circles to co-operate with him.

PROUD FAMILY TRADITIONS LED BARON ROTHSCHILD TO JILT GIRL

DROUGHT PARISIAN TUB.S.

French Girl Shows Cablegram Couched in Endearing Language From Barker

New York, July 27.—Paying to break family traditions for the virtuous and exceptionally beautiful French girl, he loved, Baron James Henry de Rothschild, twenty-seven-year-old heir to almost one hundred millions, faces a little breach of promise suit.

Mme. Perceval told the story. She is the daughter of a Parisian merchant. Her minor comes to the United States to visit looking so that he can take her to his father's house "Enfer de Rothschild" present her at the famous banking house in France, advanced ideas in American finance.

"The country is full of magnificent women," commented the young Baron shortly after his arrival here last April.

Of broad-minded Broadway he saw much. He was the cynosure of all debilitated eyes, the most beautiful of the hour in society circles, but of gay life he cared not. He wanted the girl he loved. So he sent her, according to Marie, promising to marry her.

"Finally I decided to come to New York—that was three years ago, and he met me at the pier, I know that he intended and, graced to marry me. I came because James called me the girl we could be married in this country. But he heard from his father, I know that, what caused him to say that he could not marry me. I am so desolate."

Although there is some question as to whether or not young Rothschild can be tried in American courts, he is willing to have the matter thrashed out here. Attorneys for the baron who is now in France issued the following statement:

"At the trial, the facts of the case and the history of the individuals will be in our opinion, leave little doubt as to the merits of the action. Our clients having the utmost confidence in the integrity of his position, stands ready to have the entire matter laid before an American court and jury."

Naturally, Mary James Adorns Betty Alden's "Peppy" List

MARY JAMES
Miss Mary James is well able to represent the 1921 debutantes on the list of Boston's six "peppy" young women.

By BETTY ALDEN.
Mrs. Rochester V. Loveband (Mary Sigourney).
Miss Polly Cabot.
Mrs. A. Lynde Cochran.
Miss Mary James.
It didn't seem natural to have a "peppy" list without having the "debies" of the past season represented, and so when I thought of Mary James I knew such a catastrophe could never happen. Which accounts for the presence of the Edward James' younger daughter on the list printed above. On Saturday this list, representing the six "peppy" young women in Boston society, will be complete.

A tall, slender, young girl is Mary James, with very light hair and clear, gray eyes. No, must I forget her earrings, for Mary James without these bits of ornament would not be Mary James at all.

Miss James was introduced to society last December, her presentation taking the form of a reception given for her by her parents. The affair took place at the home of the bride's uncle, Charles, on Chestnut street, which was also the scene of the coming-out party given two years before in honor of Mary's elder sister, Olivia. At both occasions, needless to say, members of Boston's "old guard" were present, and both girls were widely feted following their debuts. Although, as a matter of fact, I understand that Mary James pretends to care very little for the social swim, preferring, rather, to be doing something more "worth while." At any rate, she was one of the most willing helpers drawn from the ranks of the Junior League whenever there was a call for an usher, a flower girl or a waitress at some charity function.

Besides all this, Mary James entered the Museum School of Fine Arts this winter, and one learns that she could dance remarkably well. Besides it is in the family, for as everyone knows, her sister, Olivia, who has been studying for a number of seasons at the Museum School, has shown a good deal of talent. It was also who designed the scenery for "Now and Then," the musical show staged last April by the Vincent Club.

Last summer at this time Mr. and Mrs. James, whose home is on Mt. Vernon street, were traveling abroad with their two daughters, returning to this country in the Fall. I recall that when the San Carlo Opera Company came (its brief appearance here last season) that both Olivia and Mary James attended, gowned in black and wearing rather striking earrings. At that time the sight of young girls wearing black still caused a little comment, but during the past season so very much black has been donned by our young members of the young set that one ceased to think of it at all.

I understand that the Jameses have been spending the summer on the North Shore, at Annisquam, I believe, which, of course, is very close to the art colony at Gloucester.

BACK once more on the North Shore is Mrs. Fendricks Chaffet Whitman (Adele Chaffet-Taylor), who has been visiting friends in Chicago. The clever author of "Why Not" returned to North Beverly with one of her brothers, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chaffet Taylor of Chicago, are spending the summer in Europe with one of their sons who is studying at Oxford. Mrs. Whitman, it will be recalled, was included in our list of Boston society's six most smartly-gowned matrons.

THE Q. A. SHAW McKEANS (Margaret Sargent) have left their place at Beverly Farms for a two months' jaunt to Europe. They have left their baby daughter, Margaret, with her grandparents, the Mr. and Mrs. Graeme Houghtons, also of Beverly Farms.

Others of the summer exterior who are deserting the shore for a while are Mr. and Mrs. Valentin Hollingsworth (Ruby McCormick) and the Gerald Boardman, who left Beverly Farms, and West Manchester, respectively, for a brief sojourn in Maine at the camp of the Hollingsworths. Both Mrs. Hollingsworth and Mr. Boardman were among the hardest workers of the fair given last week at St. John's Church, Beverly Farms, where they had joint charge of the cake table.

KILLS WIFE IN JEALOUS RAGE

Providence, June 27.—In the darkened parlor of a little home at No. 1 Palm street, Olneyville, he today the bodies of William Lefort and his wife Sarah.

While Lefort worked hard at the Paragon Mills in Olneyville, as a high-salaried designer, his wife, he charged, spent other men in the little red car with other men.

"I can't stand it," Lefort cried a few days ago. "My God, Sarah, either stop it or I'll kill you."

The comely young mother ran shrieking to the police. They arrested Lefort, but his wife refused to prosecute him and the case was dropped.

Today neighbors were awakened by a commotion in the Lefort home. The kiddies were crying while the parents engaged in angry conversation. Suddenly a light was seen to move from the bedroom to the cellar, linger a moment and move back up stairs.

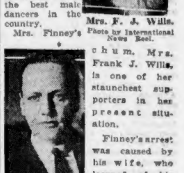

A scream—"Oh, no," a shot, piteous cries of children, another shot, then quiet, punctuated by baby moans.

The neighbors ran in. On the floor of the living room Mrs. Lefort lay dead, a bullet in her brain. In the bathroom was Lefort, dead also.

WIFE SAYS HER HUSBAND SPENT $2,000,000

San Francisco, July 27.—Her husband spent most of her inherited $2,000,000, but he did not spend it in her.

4,800 ENJOY DAY'S OUTING AS AMERICAN'S GUESTS

It took four big boats to carry the mothers and kiddies of Boston to Nantasket Beach today, guests of the Boston American. When the last boat had been filled the 4,800 mark had been reached.

This is the high-water mark for the summer season, beating the high mark of the former season by over 500.

The two excursion boats, the Betty Allen and Nantasket, got away with close to 2,400 aboard. The others were sent down on the regular boats.

It was a continuous stream of people, young and old, who flocked to the beach. The rush started at 8 o'clock and did not stop until after 10. Special Officer James Murphy of the steamboat company was kept as the "pimp," but the throngs were well handled and there was no confusion.

There was no break in the line. Thanks to the efficient work of Traffic Superintendent W. C. Briggs of the Nantasket Beach & S. Company, the flow was quickly diverted from one ship to another as soon as the capacity of the vessel was reached. Yesterday 1,300 mothers and "kiddies" enjoyed the trip.

Two big boats, with capacity "excess" were needed to transport the "bunch" to and from the beach. Even then a few hundred who were late were allowed to use the regular boats, thanks to the courtesy of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company.

NOT TO BE FORGOTTEN.
A blind man could have felt the joy that filled the air at the wharf as the big boats docked. Even officials of the steamship company that are supposed to be accustomed to badtimes, showed by broad grins that they had absorbed some of the feelings of mothers and kiddies.

The third day of the Boston American outings, like its predecessors, was one that will not soon be forgotten. It has been said that no doughboy who went to France will ever forget the ship which carried him over or back. Neither will any of the mothers forget the boat that took them down to the beach.

The Old Colony, the Rose Standish, the Myles Standish, the Nantasket, the Mary Chilton and the others are now familiar names to those who have taken part in any of the outings.

Surly Boston is a cosmopolitan city. To a casual observer there are few nationalities that are not found among those at the beach.

INSANE SLAYER SURRENDERS TO POLICE

By the Associated Press.

Hinton, W. Va., July 27.—John Fredking, the insane man who barricaded himself in his house and for thirteen days resisted the efforts of deputy sheriffs and State police to arrest him after he had killed one man and wounded four others, this morning appeared at the front door, threw up his hands and asked for a drink of water.

He was captured and lodged in the County Jail. He refused to answer questions. Physicians treated a bullet wound in his right arm. The men who had laid siege to the home had abandoned hope of starving the man into submission. His supply of ammunition also seemed endless.

Fredking, according to his father, has been mentally deranged fifteen years. His condition suddenly became worse thirteen days ago when he forced his family from the house. When Lou Mally, a prohibition officer, attempted to enter, he was shot and died soon after. Several days later, with the house surrounded, Earl Hope gained entrance, and he, too, was shot. His condition is critical. Two others sustained bullet wounds.

Doesn't she need very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking so good. Most soap and shampoo shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for the steady use is Mulligan's Compound Oil Shampoo. It is pure and gentle, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three tablespoons of Mulligan's Oil Shampoo mixed with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply massage the hair with water and oil.

It makes an abundance of it. It is a very rich and creamy substance, removing every particle of dirt, dust, and grease. It is a very rich and creamy substance, removing every particle of dirt, dust, and grease.

the ad. The owner of the novelty clock and suit company on Washington street was happily nibbling a hunk of sausage when I applied.

"Thirty-four!" he asked, chopping off another slice with his jack knife.

"At least," I told him. "In a slack season like this I shouldn't have a new model," complained Mr. Getzinger, "on my head girl goes off to Newport for a rest. A rest, mind you! A rest from what? She should sell a line of goods to a knuckle-head buyer from Vermont, once. Then she'd know what a job it is."

Mr. Getzinger paused for breath, and then, suddenly remembering something, continued with new enthusiasm.

TAKES SAMPLES ON REEF
"A rest she should have—right—but she should rest herself in some of my swiftest samples!" I asked him.

"Why'd you let her wear 'em if it gets on your nerves?" I asked the clerk and suit man.

"Suppose she comes and asks me!" said the boss, with sarcasm. "Oh, yes, she—she's in with one of them—bishops—sleeved gowns on 'an' packs away almost my whole line in them sleeves."

"A' course, when she comes back the dresses come back, too," Mr. Getzinger explained. "But how do they look? One of them is torn to shreds, one of them has soap on the trimming. A fine business!"

At this point Mr. Getzinger's case against his head model was interrupted by the entrance of a customer into the show room.

MR. SILVER OF BANGOR
"Max Silver from Bangor!" cried the boss. "See! I knew you'd be back to have a look at a real line of goods. How'd them Russian blouses go—huh, I knew it. Have a cigar?"

Mr. Silver seemed to brighten at the mention of the cigar, but his hopes were falsely raised. Mr. Getzinger was only fooling.

"An' now quick," cried the boss, turning to me, "run for the dressing room an' show the line there."

In the dressing room Miss La Rue, the size 38 model, hooked me into a silk dress and pushed me out into the show room.

"There!" cried Mr. Getzinger, briskly rubbing his hands. "I ask you! Is that a dream?" coming close to me he whispered.

IT FITS CRAZY
"That thing fits you crazy. Better you should hold it tight in back when you go towards the customer an' pull it in front when you go apast him, say!"

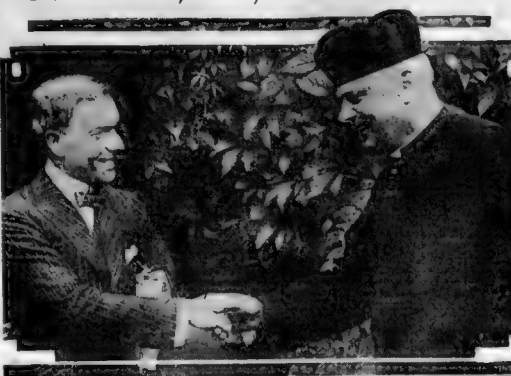

"That ain't A-I silk," objected Mr. Silver.

"Imported!" defended the boss. "Smell the ocean!"

"It cracks," announced the customer, examining a saash-end closely.

"Cracks, he says!" indignantly cried the salesman. "He should say it cracks and live! Of course," he went to explain, "it ain't such a good piece of goods in the sample as in the swatch book. But the goods you get is like the swatch book, guaranteed."

JOHN D., JR., IN FISH CITY

PASTOR AND MILLIONAIRE
John D. Rockefeller, Jr. again proved himself a capable millionaire during his short stay at Gloucester, where he was the guest of a group of fishermen at the Gloucester Hotel. He was the guest of a group of fishermen at the Gloucester Hotel. He was the guest of a group of fishermen at the Gloucester Hotel.

Mr. Silver, finally convinced, placed an order for the silk dress and I went back to change to another model.

While I was getting into an evening dress Miss La Rue walked out on high French heels to model a henna satin outfit.

When she returned she was in tears. "Always," sobbed the hefty blonde sister, "when I got a toothache or something, any way he has to jump on me."

DON'T CRY, LITTLE GIRL
"Here, here don't cry, little girl," said Mr. Getzinger, bustling into the dressing room. "All I said was you had a hole in your stocking as big as Boston Commons. Such uncleanliness!"

"Aw," he continued to plead as Miss La Rue sobbed louder and louder, "I didn't mean it. Don't cry. Anyway, not with that dress on. Here," turning squarely about with his back to the model, "have some candy."

Miss La Rue smiled through her tears and helped herself to a piece of candy from a bag in Mr. Getzinger's hip pocket.

"Now, young ladies," snapped the boss briskly, "the rest of the line before the customer gets thinking. Quick!"

WOMAN SUES SON-IN-LAW FOR $5,000

In a bill of equity filed in the Suffolk Superior Court, Lillian Hunt of Boston says that her son-in-law, Louis M. Culbert of Belmont, is entitled to allow him to have her property.

She claims that her son-in-law on April 4 of this year called on her while she was in an Arlington sanitarium, stating that he was in financial difficulties and asked Mrs. Hunt to assist him.

She says she gave him $5,000 worth of automobile and railway stock, which he sold. He purchased property at No. 23 Washington street, Belmont, she claims, with the money he secured from the stock.

Mrs. Hunt is asking to have the house sold as security for her claim.

TENDLER CONFIDENT OF WINNING TITLE IN TONIGHT'S GO

QUAKER CITY BATTLER HAS CROWN ALL WON

By SID MERCER.
Tendler, N. J., July 27.—A straightforward battler and talker is Low Tendler, whose scruff with Benny Leonard tonight has provided a wider range of opinion than the tariff schedule.
"I haven't a word to say against Leonard either as a scrapper or a fighter," said Lefty Lew here. "Natura'y I was surprised at his outburst the night day because Benny Leonard takes the world on his confidence. If he thought he was going to get my seat that way he wanted his breath."
"I must say, however, that I think Benny remarks were extremely bad taste at this particular time," I'll tell you why. He is only building himself up for a heavy fall if I happen to topple him over. According to his own estimates he will be faked by a dub if I whip him.
If I was champion and Leonard the contender I would try to make the public believe I was a real fighter to show that I would keep many people away from a seat.

"No, sir, I'd say he was good and then if he liked me I'd have the satisfaction of saying I had to a good man. I'd hate to lose to a joke fighter."

"I expect a tough fight. I know Leonard has reason for me as he is."

Leonard and the champion is a rugged customer.
It is hard to fight forward, however it may be short and sweet or it may go to a tiresome limit. My own opinion is that both men will make a ripping, tearing fight of it for at least four rounds, unless a quick knockout is delivered.
If Leonard can't weaken Tendler in four rounds or gets hurt himself we expect to see him go on the defensive and remain there.
He is the champion and can't lose a decision. A knockout is the thing he must avoid.
Tendler, if he makes a good showing in the early rounds, will

Tendler's Record of Best Ring Battles

1917 — Johnny Dundee, 6 rounds, decision; Frankie Britt, Baltimore, won, 15 rounds; Rocky Kansas, 6 rounds, no decision; Jack Russo, N. O., Boston, 5 rounds.

1918 — Willie Jackson, 6 rounds, no decision; Tommy Tushy, K. O., 4 rounds; Pete Hartley, K. O., 4 rounds; Frankie Nelson, K. O., 4 rounds; Frankie Britt, K. O., 3 rounds; Willie Jackson, won, 15 rounds; Ever Hammer, 6 rounds, no decision.

1919 — Rocky Kansas, 10 rounds, no decision; Joe Wolfing, 6 rounds, no decision; Jimmy Duffy, 6 rounds, no decision; George Chesny, K. O., 1 round; Harvey Thorpe, 10 rounds, no decision.

1920 — Alton Dundee, K. O., 2 rounds; Johnny Martin, 6 rounds, no decision; Tim Roney, 6 rounds, no decision; George Papp, K. O., 6 rounds; Flukey Mitchell, 10 rounds, no decision; Eddie Fitzsimmons, 6 rounds, no decision; Richie Mitchell, 10 rounds, no decision; Chick Smith, K. O., 7 rounds.

1921 — Sailor Friedman, 6 rounds, no decision; Rocky Kansas, lost, 15 rounds.

1922 — K. O. Bobby Barrett, 5 rounds.

BOTH SCRAPPERS SEE CERTAIN VICTORY

By BENNY LEONARD.
"I'm prepared to account for the greatest battle of my fist career when I crawl through the ropes against Low Tendler tomorrow night. The lightweight championship will not change hands in my estimation. I am satisfied with my speed, wind and punching ability, and feel that, with the aid of my toughness and ring generalship, I will accomplish what I am after—a knockout victory inside of seven rounds."
Every corner of strength that I possess will be behind each blow that I land, and if the opportunity presents itself I will terminate the bout in the very first round. I'm quite sure that Tendler's defense is poor. That is one reason why I'm under the impression I will encounter little or no difficulty in finding a resting spot for my choice punches on him.
I feel sorry for Tendler. I'll give him an unmerciful beating if I don't knock him out.
In regards to my plan of battle, I want to say that I will take him over and over as we start our fight. If I don't take him I'll flatten him with a right hand, and should he decide to box defensively, I will be prepared to knock him out with an occasional left jab.
The result? Well, Tendler will find out for himself. I will win within seven rounds. Just wait and see.
By LEW TENDLER.
"Leonard seems to take me for a dub, but he'll know I'm not one when I get through with him. He has said a lot of unkind things about me, but I say he's a great fighter. I sincerely believe I'm better. A year ago, when we were supposed to fight, only Benny hurt his hand and couldn't. I said I'd get him in four rounds. That will see. I'm sure I'll knock him out in four rounds."

REPORT RUTH AND PIPP IN FIST FIGHT

St. Louis, July 27.—It was reported today that Babe Ruth and Willie Pipp came to blows during yesterday's Browns-Yankee game, while the New York players were never trained before. He knew I'd go to be at my best to beat him.

"I'm hitting harder than I ever did in my life and if Leonard thinks I can't hit him he is due for a big surprise."
"If he should beat me I'll be a good loser. But where is Benny's 'out if I flatten him'?"

Tendler in Shape and Is Confident

The humble opinion of one who has seen both men in training is that this fight promises to be one of colorful action from the first tap of the gong.
There isn't a doubt that Tendler is in great shape and he is grimly confident. Lew carries the body of a waterweight on his slender legs. If anything, he is stronger than gain confidence and increase his aggressiveness. However, he will find it difficult to get to Benny if the champion goes into his shell.

Benny is the better defensive fighter. Tendler's best defense is to keep on top of his man and shoot that long left.
The challenger, in our opinion, will not find it easy to hit a purely defensive Leonard, so if they finish with Lew rushing and Benny in-cannin, the bout will likely proceed to an unexciting finish.
That Benny will exercise extreme caution to an unexciting finish. We have talked to many Lew's, managers and well-informed fans, all of them predict a great start, which may end the thing quickly.

Tendler Would Make a Popular Champion
Tendler has a kind word for everybody. Prosperity has not spoiled him. If a new lightweight is to be enthroned tonight we predict that Figliana will find Low Tendler a popular title-holder.

Tendler selected Delano as a training spot because he has spent parts of several summers there on the guest of Mr. Tendler, who is a boyish amateur enthusiast.
The time when Lew has stood days for the past two weeks, a so-called lack of the garage on the "Tul" estate.
It was constructed for Tendler, who boxes there often under the tutelage of Eddie O'Keefe, the old Philadelphia heavyweight.
Across the street is the Tulé Summer mansion, built of stone and set in the beautiful shubbery of a tangle lawn which faces on the Delaware River. In the basement of this mansion is an indoor gymnasium and a ring which Tendler uses on rainy days.
As we wandered over the lawn, Tendler spoke earnestly of his ambition to own such a place some day and to bring up a family amid such surroundings. For the time he was just a family man. The fight was a very background.

"I've got every reason in the world to beat Leonard," he said. "It means money to me, and with money I can provide for my people."
Like Leonard, Tendler is an acquaintance, son, father and brother-in-law. A characteristic of the Jewish race that family ties are strengthened by prosperity.

PAIR OF TOUGH SCRAPS IN TWILIGHT

There will be a couple of tough battles in the Greater Boston Twilight League this evening, one on Foreway Green Mallin, and another in at the J. J. (Coney) grounds in Roxbury.
Maiden Knights of Columbus strolled out to Roman Park. De-chester, a few days ago, and De-chester won the tussle by a wild margin.
Manager Jim Flanagan was sore about the condition of the Dorchester orchard, a mass of mean little pebbles. James also tells the world of his excellent pasture in Malden and says the Dorchester boys will go home minus the well-known elite tonight.

The Modified City team will be entertained by the Connelly Club on the Connelly grounds, formerly the Mass-street playground.
There is no reason why the Connelly club can't get some and enter in a few wins in the infant league. They have Jim Mulvey without a doubt one of the best hitters in semi-pro ranks.

READING DROPPED FROM LEAD BY TIE

Reading Town team was actually tossed from the top rung of the Twilight League ladder when they couldn't do better than to tie with St. Joseph's (Catholic).

Club at Reading Park. At the game was called at the end of innings the score stood 7 all.
Les Andrews fanned fourteen of the visiting batters, and although the Reading team won, it was as a matter of fact a tie. St. Joseph's, when they couldn't win, they native pastime.

on the bench during the sixth inning.
Neither player showed any signs of the reported encounter, however, and both finished the game in their positions.
When asked about the incident, Manager Flanagan replied: "There were no injuries, whoever had the accident."

First Authentic Story of French Bluebeard, Who Won 283 Women.

Written By William Le Queux

LANDRU, still keeping the police guessing, decides it is advisable to change his scene of operations. While driving one day from Paris to Rouen, he spies an isolated villa, setting back from the road.

He had passed it a full mile or so before he saw that it was just the kind of lonely house of which he had been lately in search. So he pulled up, and turning back, got down and entered the exterior. The house stood close to the high road, with a small rose garden in front flanked by railings and a few newly grown bushes and laurels, which enclosed it from the vulgar gaze. The garden quite a spacious one—ran back into a ploughed field, but was well enclosed with a high fence, while at the rear were some outbuildings and a good-sized garage.

It was quite a spick-and-span villa, and its remote situation appealed to him. Beyond the church, which stood alone, surrounded by its graveyard, there was no other house in sight, save for a few open lands, a small chicken farm. The nearest village proved to be Gisors, a tiny little town, but from the house it could not be seen.

The iron gates being locked, Landru clambered over the railings and made a good run for the premises. The garden at that season was of no account, but as he walked around the premises he became impressed that the house, well named "The Hermit," was just the place in which to establish another "nest of love."

He stood at the end of the garden and gazed around. Not a house was in sight, the place being built as it seemed, as far from any other human habitation as possible.

He decided to rent it, and that object he, on the same evening, through the assistance of a printer, and signed an agreement, paying three months' rent in advance.

So his landlord he represented himself as an engineer, carrying on business in Paris, and accordingly, though an assassin of women, Landru was an amazingly shrewd and punctilious business man, who paid debts methodically and always on the day they were due.

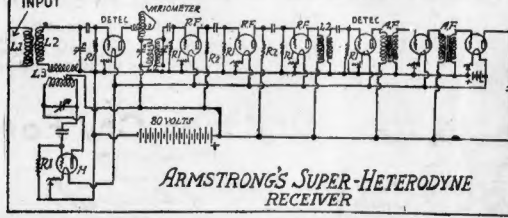

Within ten days of signing the agreement, the goods which had been removed from Versailles were installed at "The Hermit."

Life Career of the World's Greatest Love Criminal, as Shown by the Archives of the Paris Police

Paris is characterized—the nearest station for Gamblers—from which he had to take the old-fashioned diligences—so out-of-the-world was his place—and one single ticket for his quest!

On the night of his arrival, Landru's first flames consisted of being tried. They had been tried in Paris, and it was already nearly ten o'clock.

After the lunch in the small but pleasant dining-room, on the right from the central entrance hall, stood a dish of tangy tangerine oranges, she finished one, and while Landru smoked his cigarette she ate and enjoyed it, he watching intently.

"Tomorrow we will walk in the woods, my dear," he said. "Tonight you are fatigued and should retire early. The woman who comes in during my absence has, no doubt, seen to your bed."

"Yes, it is all quite charming," she said, and he had already been upstairs.

"That is another game, dear," he urged, handing her the plate. "They are very sweet. I had one when I was here the day before yesterday," he added.

"That reminds me, she said another."

not as she did so the great criminal still watched her from beneath his dark, shaggy brows. Would Morgani's deadly capture and it was his first experience with the new preparation.

Half an hour later the woman he had promised to marry and whose signature he had secured upon her divorce in Gisors, and he returned to her room, not, however, before he had laid her in her arms and had printed upon her lips a death kiss.

Landru then remained below, alone and watchful. He went to the buffet and poured out for himself a stiff glass of cognac and then sat down, awaiting his more to catch any sound of distress from his victim's room.

He sat in the self-same room with the door open, but he only heard one sound—his victim moving about as she retired to bed. He tried to see her and so went to the door, but he found her lying full asleep, and it was not until 11 o'clock in the morning that he found her in chains and dead.

He tapped at Madame's door, but she did not answer. Then he entered, and to his complete satisfaction found that the woman was already dead.

Answers to Radio Fans

W. F. M., Gloucester.—There are several ways of converting a vacuum-coupler set into a regenerative set with tickler coil. The simplest, however, is to connect the primary of the lower-coupler to a regular single circuit inductance, with one end going to ground and the other to the grid. The grid, however, should be aerial and grid. Then connect the secondary in series with the plate circuit. You will not have so many of the turns on the secondary as in a regenerative set. R. W. Haver, Two phones of different resistance will not work together, as the signal will be weaker in the one having the higher resistance. Perhaps, however, your difficulty has been that you have connected the two tubes in parallel. They should be in series with each other in any case.

D. K. Boston.—The grid leak varies from one-half to two megohms. The grid, however, should be about .0005 mfd.

D. C. S. Wollaston-Triton. It is never used as a crystal for the detector, either with a vacuum or crystal. As a matter of fact, all crystals used for rectifying in radio are compounds. Telluride, selenium and gold is occasionally used.

J. H. C.—All loop antennas are not equally directional. Occasionally it is almost impossible to find a loop which will give you the best variation in strength of signals when a loop is swung around, although this is unusual. Of course a loop will not cut out all stations in any event.
